REVIEW: Arrange by (full name) Options Download PDF File (0.76 MB) This book contains the following PDF files: FRM Part 1 Book No. 1 G.This invention relates to a novel catalyst system for the polymerization of olefins. There is a well known class of zirconocene catalysts, typified by the well known compound [(C.sub.5 H.sub.5).sub.2 ZrCl.sub.2],.sub.2 MeAlCl and disclosed in U.S. Pat. No. 3,242,099, that has high activity for the polymerization of olefins and particularly propylene. The catalysts are believed to have the following structure: ##STR2## The metal atom is believed to be (1) the active site for the polymerization of olefins; (2) the site of coordination of an organic aluminum halide to the metal atom; and (3) the site of halide ion displacement. Catalysts of the foregoing type are traditionally made in the presence of a cocatalyst system that includes an alkylaluminum. The cocatalyst system is believed to be the key to the commercial utility of these zirconocene catalysts. It is believed that the alkylaluminum component of the cocatalyst system acts to stabilize the zirconocene from premature, undesired hydrolysis. In other words, the cocatalyst system prevents the undesired conversion of the zirconocene to the dehydrated, acidic hydride. The crystallization and conversion properties of the zirconocene catalyst are dependent on the particular cocatalyst system used to produce the catalyst and these properties are believed to be independent of the structure of the zirconocene itself. In the case of the zirconocene [(C.sub.5 H.sub.5).sub.2 ZrCl.sub.2],.sub.2 MeAlCl, the cocatalyst is methylaluminoxane (MAO e24f408de9
