The compact hatchback will also be one of two cars in a trio of cars sharing the same platform for the next-generation model year. It's a departure from what we've seen before – the i30 is already the last-generation model, and it wouldn't seem right to change the name for the new one. Instead, it's a fresh look. The new i30 has a distinctive, humped front end with elegant creases running all the way to the back edge of the car and a profile that makes it more aerodynamic. Inside, the dashboard has sleek, contoured surfaces and a neat 'picture frame' look to it. It's a nice-looking front, but the rear is a little less interesting. There's a whole lot going on under the skin. The first gen i30 was based on the Renault Fluence. The next-generation Hyundai doesn't use that platform though – it's based on the global Nexo SUV, which is a bit of a monster. The Fluence was a compact SUV which was meant to blend style with practicality. The new Nexo SUV is a tough car, and this is going to be an all-new platform – we've seen some neat designs that should make car buyers happy. The new i30 will use various versions of this platform (the Nexo) depending on the market. European i30s will be based on the Nexo100, while the rest of the world will be taken on by the Nexo200. You'll get the four-door liftback version of the i30 in the UK. However, the 09e8f5149f

Watch Two Videos At Once Software is a simple-to-use Windows application that enables you to view two videos at the same time, exactly as the name says. It offers support for MPG, MPEG, AVI and WMV format, and integrates only basic media player controls, so it can be handled by all types of users. Setting up the tool takes little time and effort. When it comes to the interface, Watch Two Videos At Once Software opts for a simple look and organized structure, without putting too much emphasis on the appearance. Select two clips for side-by-side playback Video clips can be opened with the help of the file browser since the drag-and-drop method is not supported. As previously mentioned, only standard media player controls are featured here. They resemble Windows Media Player in appearance and let users pause playback, seek a particular position in the stream by moving a slider, as well as adjust the volume level. In addition, you can zoom in and out, view file properties (e.g. length, bit rate, video size, aspect ratio, codecs, location), as well as configure default options when it comes to performance (e.g. use video smoothly, customize video border color), plugins (e.g. audio and video DSPs) and network settings (e.g. allow the player to receive multicast streams). Unfortunately, the tool does integrate options performing actions for both videos at the same time, such as pausing playback, which would've come in handy for comparing the content of two clips.
